Falsification of Our Food.

From Cassell's Magazine.

It is not a pleasant thing to think that there is scarcely a thing we eat or drink that is not adulterated. Every tradesman has his trick; thus, if the tea-merchant falsifies his tea, the baker in return, adulterates his bad flour with alum, and pays him with bad bread; and the publican defrauds both of them by mixing his spirits and making up his porter. Thus an enormous amount of roguery is expended in producing a dead level of fraud, by which no one is a gainer; indeed by which we are all losers, for fraud in food means something more than substantiating a cheap for a better material; it means the substitution of an unwholesome, often a poisonous food for that which we depend upon to sustain our strength. Let us take bread for an example, as this is the staff of life, and form the main portion of the food of the working classes. All the bread in the poor quarters of the town is made, to begin with, from damaged flour; with which, when potatoes are cheap, they are mixed in large quantities. Now, as the potato is a far less nourishing aliment than flour, his mixture is a direct fraud upon the poor man. The bad color of the damaged flour, again, compels the baker to doctor his batch with alum, which, when constantly taken, is certainly not very wholesome. The amount of water in the potatoes, again, which the baker sells at two pence per pound, is a fraud upon the purchaser; and when we add that in scarcely any case is the quarters or half-quarters full weight, the amount of loss the laboring classes have to submit to is very serious, both in a monetary point of view and also in a dietetic one. Even the butter that is used with it is universally adulterated in the lower-class shops; and, indeed, often in the better-class ones, especially now that prices are so high. Hard, when it is cheap, is mixed with salted butter; previously well washed with milk and sweetened with a little sugar colored with annatto, and, well beaten up, is very often sold as Epping butter in the better-class shops. What the very poor get when these tricks are played in high-class neighborhoods, it is hard to say. One thing is certain, nearly a quarter of the weight is made up of water. As long as a working man buys his chop or his steak, he may feel sure he is getting the genuine article; but directly he has anything to do with made up meats, with alumode beef, sausages or bolognes, he is open to the most disgusting frauds. The Smithfield Market Commissioner opened the eyes of the people to the frauds committed by the meat salesmen; and, by some people higher placed; that were enough to make people shudder. Thus, for instance, one of the witnesses examined on this occasion, speaking of diseased meat, says: "It is purchased by soup-houses, sausage-makers, the alumode beef and meat pie shops, etc. There is one soup-shop doing, believe, five hundred pounds a week in diseased meat. The trade in diseased meat is very large, as anything in the shape of flesh can be sold at one penny per pound, or eightpence per stone. I am certain that if one hundred carcasses of cows were lying dead in the neighborhood of London, I could get them all sold within a day; it don't matter what they died of." I said just now that if a working man bought his meat in joints, he was pretty safe, but this depends upon his ability to distinguish meat when it is good. Diseased beasts are regularly killed in the country, and consigned to the London market. It is dressed up so cleverly that the unwary are taken in by it. We are told that one of the insurance companies who insure stock, was, not long since, a party of this nefarious means of getting rid of this fearful salvage. That diseased meat is still sold in large quantities, the seizures by the police are sufficient proof. And not only meat, but fish. Whenever the costermonger's barrow seen going about plied with fish, the poor man should beware, as he may suspect that something is the matter, or he would not turn fish-monger. I was lately at the opening of some samples of preserved beet, prepared in Australia by the simple process of exhausting the air; it was as good as the finest English beef. This food when it comes in quantities, will be sold for sixpence a pound; a splendid contribution of our children at the antipodes to the pinched and poverty-stricken poor of the mother country. We are told, indeed, that markets will be opened in the poorer quarters of the town for the excellent food, and we have no doubt it will be appreciated.

Tea and coffee have long been the prey of the adulterator; but, luckily for the poor, it is principally the green teas and higher-class gunpowder teas that are made up. Some people imagine that the green color is given by drying the tea upon copper plates; this is a vulgar error. The Chinese themselves, knowing the demand there is in England for moderately priced green tea, paint black teas to imitate it in a very ingenious manner. The Chinese never drink this colored tea themselves, they only prepare it to suit the tastes of the outer barbarians, and surely they have some warranty for so naming us. The gunpowder is manufactured both in England and China to mix with other teas. It often has but little tea in it, being compounded of sand, tea-dust, dirt and broken down portions of leaves, worked together with gum into grains. When it is intended to mix it with scented caper, this stuff is faced with black lead; when with gunpowder, tumeric, Prussian blue and chalk are used. Black teas, as a rule, are genuine, especially the low-priced ones; but now and then re-dried leaves are re-made up, mixed with sloe-leaves. The business some years ago was carried on very largely. Some tea is quite as objectional and injurious as adulterated spirits; a fact which has never been turned against the teetotallers. Assam tea is generally pure. Coffee is permitted to be adulterated by the government with chicory, but then the fact must be so stated upon the paper or canister. This mixing opens the door to shameful adulteration, as the chicory is much cheaper than the coffee, and the grocer takes care to put more of the former into the mixture than the latter. But chicory is not the worst adulteration that coffee is liable to; mangoldwurzel, roasted wheat flour, red earth, roasted horse chestnuts, and we are even told that in some neighborhoods baked horse's and bullock's blood are used for this purpose. Our authority for this last statement is a work by Mr. P. G. Simmonds, entitled "Coffee as it is, and as it ought to be," in which he says, "In various parts of the metropolis, but more especially in the east, are to be found liver bakers. These men take the livers of oxen and horses, bake them and grind them into a powder, which they sell to the low-priced coffee shopkeepers at from fourpence to sixpence per pound, horse's liver coffee being the highest price. It may be known by allowing the coffee to stand until it is cold, when a thick pellicle of skin will be found on the top." He adds, "it goes further than coffee, and is generally mixed with chicory and other vegetable imitations of coffee." The analytic commissioner of the Lancet, actually has tested this horrible stuff, which we will believe without his assurance to possess a very disagreeable animal smell. The puzzle is how people can be found to drink such horrible decoctions even in the poorest coffee houses. The milk is always adulterated largely with water, which at sixpence a quart is rather too bad.

The bright green color to be observed in pickles bought at the shops is produced by boiling a slip of copper with them. Thus, copper is often present in poisonous quantities. Avoid, therefore, good reader, very green pickles with the greatest care. When we see how liable we are to be slowly poisoned in our food, it is not wonderful that people living in civilized countries should suffer in their health, and this warns us to look to the weapons with which we combat disease; but these, too, on trial are found to be wanting. The nurse will be surprised when she is told that much of the arrow-root sold is made of nothing but potato-flour and sago-meal. Honey is adulterated with flour starch and sugar-starch. Mercury is falsified with lead, tin and bismuth; opium with a dozen ingredients; gentian with poisonous aconite and bella-donna; rhubarb with gamboge, and castor and cod-liver oils with common oils that have no medicinal virtue. Condiments have long offered a fine field to the adulterator. Mustard, for instance, is never sold pure. Out of 43 samples analyzed by Dr. Hassal, every one was adulterated with wheat flour, and colored up with tumeric. Sulphuric acid is very strong in the vinegar cruet and the pepper castor we find together with pure pepper a large percentage of flour, ground rice, and—what does the reader think?—linseed meal; a poultice internally with every bit of beef we put in our mouths. Cayenne is universally falsified; deal, sawdust and brickdust to give it bulk, and red lead to give it color. Curry powder, also receives this poisonous adulteration.

Our fluids are, if possible even more abused than our solids. The great brewers, it is true do not adulterate, but the moment their beer and stout get into the cellar of the publican, the mischief begins. The brewers druggist is a trade which has sprung out of these falsifications. As a rule, water is the great adulteration as regards quantity, but in order to give strength and bite to the liquid, salt and tobacco are added, and in the case of porter, burnt sugar. It is doctored for flavor in a hundred ways. To make a fine froth to stout that has grown stale, there is a liquid sold in the trade as beer-headings. Our advice to beer-drinkers is never to get your beer at a public house. That which you get from the brewers is always pure, and possesses several degrees more strength than you can ever hope to get from the public house. Spirits—especially gin—are well known to be flavored according to the taste of the neighborhood. The poorer quarter of the town, the stronger and more bitter must gin appear to be in the mouth. Water is of course added—in many cases to full 50 per cent. Never mind; with the addition of flavorings, such as oil of cinnamon, cayenne pepper, almond oil, sulphuric acid etc, it is brought up to the comforting point, and is competent to warm the cockles of the heart of the wretched drizzle-tailed women who imbibe it.

We might justly have mentioned among the articles that we rely upon to combat disease—wine, that powerful tonic, which is now surpassing all others in treatment of depressing complaints. This article of social life has been for centuries grossly adulterated; and that which is generally given at the public dispensaries is notoriously the most adulterated of all, because it is the cheapest. We may say absolutely there is no such thing as pure port or sherry imported to this country. From five-and-twenty to thirty per cent, of spirit is always thrown in to give the body Englishman are asserted to require. This admixture kills anything like fine flavor of course and to bring it up to the deep color demanded, jerupegga, a mixture of syrup sugar and elderberries, is added. But of what matter is that? man can always be found equal to the occasion, as the following advertisement will show which appeared in a London paper last September.

PARFUMER WANTED.—A practical distiller, having been experimenting for the last seventeen years, can produce a fair port and sherry by fermentation without a drop of the grape juice, and wishes a party with from £2,000 to £3,000 capital, to establish a house in Hamburg for the manufacture of wines. Has already a good connection in business. Apply to—
With this pretty specimen of the unblushing manner in which fraud in food and drink is carried on in this country, I think I had better conclude.

A lover thus appealed to his tender dulcinea for a parting kiss—he got it!

Terribly, tragical, and sublimely retributive will be the course pursued by me, if you do not instantaneously place thine alabaster lips to mine, en-rapture my immortal soul by imprinting angelic sensations of divine bliss upon these indispensable members of the human physiognomy, and then allow me to take my departure from the everlasting sublimity of thy thrice glorious presence.

I clasped her tiny hand in mine, I clasped her beautiful arm; I vowed to shield her from the wind, and from the world's cold storm. She set her beautiful eyes on me, the tears did wildly flow, and with her little lips she said, "Confound you, let me go."

The Emblem of Democracy.

Editor Statesman. Why is it that the Democratic party adopt the rooster as an emblem of victory? Please explain.
DEMOCRAT.

Columbus, Oct. 31, 1867.
Because the game rooster is the gamest bird, when encroached upon by his fellows, that ever existed, and the Democracy is the gamest party that ever voted at an election or resented oppression. Both the party and its emblem, when they go into the fight, make it a matter of life and death. Both may be whipped, but not conquered, for giving up, when once in the fight, is a word unknown to the practice of the rooster, and it is not found in the Democratic vocabulary.

This is one reason for adopting the rooster as an emblem of Democracy; another reason is this:

During the war of 1812, the British on Lake Champlain was attacked by the American fleet, under Com. McDonough. The fleet, much inferior to that of the English, suffered terribly in the first part of the battle. At the moment when it was raging fiercest; the heaviest fire of the enemy directed against the flag-ship of McDonough; his men driven from the guns by the fierce cannonade, and dismay sat upon every countenance, and the storm of iron hail, which seemed to threaten destruction not only to the ship but to every living soul therein, was at its height, a cannon ball struck a chicken-coop and knocked it to pieces, killing all it contained, save a game rooster. Flying upon the bulwarks of McDonough's flag-ship, the noble bird, undaunted by the noise and confusion and carnage around him, with clarion voice rang out his notes of defiance and of victory.

Sailors are very superstitious, and when, in the pause of the thunder of the enemy's cannon, they heard the shrill cock-a-doodle-doo, of the undaunted bird, they gathered new courage, and repairing again to the guns, returned anew the fire of the enemy, cheered by the loud crow of the emblem of Democracy, until the battle ended, and McDonough, on Lake Champlain, like the Democracy in Ohio and Pennsylvania, was victorious over the enemies of the country.—Ohio Statesman.

Dr. J. H. Jurey, who absconded from Covington some time ago, to avoid arrest on the charge of forgery, was captured in St. Louis, Mo., by Samuel K. Hays, a citizen of Covington, who happened to meet him on the street, in that city.—Cin. Enq.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead—who never to himself hath said—I will my local paper take—both for my own and family's sake? If such there be, let him repent—and have the paper to him sent—and if he'd pass a happy winter—he in advance should pay the printer.

A friend of ours the other day, while reading the election returns from Pennsylvania and Ohio, remarked; "well ain't that hell?"

This put us in mind of a sprightly and beautiful little boy well known on our streets as the son of Rev. Mr. Talbot. Dick was the handsome little fellow's name. He could not speak very plain, and when asked how is your ma? She's hell, (well.) How is your pa? He's hell too.—Har. Sig.

The famous horse "Lexington," died a few days since at the residence of his owner, Thos. H. Embury.

During the war a lady passing from cot to cot through the wards of a hospital, was asked to hear one fellow laughing at her. She stopped to reprove him.
"Why, look here ma'am," says he "you've give me a tract on the sin of dancing when I've got both legs off."

We learn from the Frankfort Yeoman that Dr. B. F. Crisler, member elect of the Legislature of Kentucky, from Boone, died on Saturday, the 12th inst., at his residence near Burlington. His disease was flux. Gov. Stevenson has issued a proclamation ordering an election to be held on the 23d day of November next, for the choice of a qualified person to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Crisler.

There is a man out West who drinks so much whisky that the mosquitos that bite him die with delirium tremens.

If you want the best boot in the United States, call at J. H. Shawhan's.

Judge Curry's Quarterly Court is in session this week with plenty of business.

Maj. Curry has purchased a lot on Pike street above the railroad and will erect a fine residence.

You will find the largest and best assortment of cloths, cassimers and vestings, at J. H. Shawhan's.

Mr. Rhorer, the picture man, has purchased a lot on Walnut street, and intends putting up a residence.

The farmers say that the springs are swelling, and that wet weather may be looked for. It is much needed.

Dr. Renaker has improved his Drug Store in appearance very much. Good for the Doctor.

The nicest varieties of hats and caps, and the best boots and shoes are kept J. H. Shawhan.

Under the administration of Mr. Grinan, sidewalk improvements have become quite numerous. He suits us.

Under shirts, over shirts, drawers, gloves, neck ties, handkerchiefs, cloth brushes, shoe brushes, etc., etc., at J. H. Shawhan's.

H. M. Swope, Madison street, Covington, Ky., Merchant Tailor, is prepared to cut and make up suits of clothes at the cheapest rates - will duplicate Cincinnati prices. Call and see him.

Go to J. H. Shawhan's if you want any clothing, where you will find the largest and best assortment of clothing ever brought to this city.

J. J. Good, our city gunsmith has purchased thirty feet front on Pike street, from Prof. Amenda, on which he will erect immediately a three-story business house. So we go, and Cynthiana continues going up.

C. B. Cook has purchased of Dr. McNeese the residence situated in the northern portion of the city, for ten thousand dollars.

Mr. Cook has made a contract for the building of a large brick warehouse near his mill, on the railroad.

Our old friend, Samuel Dills, of Pendleton county, was injured last spring while stepping off the cars, near his residence. It seems that the cars started before he could get off. He brought suit against the company, and a jury of his county, gave him 2,000 dollars damage.

We received a visit last Monday from our friend Colonel J. R. Barrack, editor of Scott's Atlanta Magazine. He is one of the soundest, as well as clearest-headed men we have ever known. His Magazine is very popular, and every body should take it.

S. Einstein, Merchant Tailor, 33 Pike street, Covington, has received a full and complete stock of the latest styles and finest quality of cloths, cassimers, vestings, and a full stock of gentlemen's furnishing goods. He is prepared to "measure" his friends and customers in any kind of garment, and guarantees satisfaction to the most fastidious.

On Thursday last, October 24th, Mr. Land's new dry-goods store, in this city, was discovered to be on fire, about 10 o'clock at night, by Mr. Bents, who, giving the alarm, soon brought a sufficient number of people to the scene, to suppress the flames. The damage to Mr. Land, will amount to a hundred or two dollars - not more. Let us remark to our people, that they should never go to a fire with an empty bucket. It is an indication of great laziness; and dry buckets are always too plentiful at such places.

The people of Berry's Station have commenced improving. They have Macadamized Walnut street to Water street, and we understand that street cars will soon be run from Colmansville four times a day and return to the Station—that is to say when the bridge is finished, and will be able to stand one year without falling down.

Capt. W. R. or W. B. Dunn, of this county, formerly of the Federal army, will learn something of particular interest to himself, by calling at this office.

A WIFE.—Can any one tell why some of our care-worn, seedy, woe-begone old bachelors don't get married? The ladies smile very sweetly, and look very pretty, and surely out of the many dear maidens waiting to be wooed and won, each bachelor could find one fond heart "his joys to redouble, his cares to divide." Jeremy Taylor, who, no doubt, drew from his experience, says that "a good wife is Heaven's best gift to man," and the wisest man that the world ever knew, and who had more experience in the married life than any other man we ever knew, except Brigham Young, says that "whoso findeth a good wife, findeth a good thing." Then can you tell, ye miserable offenders against reason, common sense, and your manifest destiny, why you don't look out for some virtuous woman, who can make your home happy, and ask her to be your wife? Then when you sit by the hearth-stove when winter prevails, and list to the tempest, you dread not its gales, for here in her glory presides the good wife, "The joy of your heart and the pride of your life."

TRANSFERS OF REAL ESTATE.—Several sales of real estate on Pike street, of our city, took place yesterday:

James M. Givens sold to Stephen B. Cook a lot 16 feet front at $56 per foot, and Mr. Cook has commenced excavating this morning for the purpose of erecting a 2 story brick house thereon. J. Q. Ward sold to J. L. Griffith a lot 27 feet front.

These sales, and others noticed elsewhere, show a lively trade on Pike street. The vacuum caused by the great fire of 1864 is now almost closed on the south side of said street, and the opening of next spring will show a large increase in the trade of Cynthiana, and the beginning of a new era on Pike street. Our citizens doing business on Main street, north of the Court-house, would do well to improve the appearance of their business houses or move round on Pike street.

NEW BUILDINGS.—D. A. Givens began the erection of a large new store room on his lot on Pike street, during the past week.

Thomas R. Hill is enclosing his large livery stable with a brick wall, thereby improving the appearance of his building, and adding greatly to the convenience of the public by furnishing additional room for horses, buggies, and wagons.

Richard Ahrens is laying the foundation for a dwelling house on his lot near the depot. And we understand that C. B. Cook is about to erect a large dwelling house on his lot lately purchased near his new mill now almost completed, situated in the southern extremity of the city. Several other houses have been put in progress of erection within the last week, but we are not informed as to whom they belong. Our city is growing so rapidly that hereafter we shall not be surprised if we find houses springing up like Aladdin's palace, in a single night.

MARRIAGES.
